Class Matters by Correspondents of the New York Times

English Language Arts, 10th Grade

WHAT'S THE STORY?

New York Times correspondents investigated and addressed issues that affect various classes and how each class has a different perception or experience in life. Statistics reveal that the gap is increasing between lower and upper classes as it relates to health, education, religion, etc. Each segment, originally published in the New York Times as a series of articles, offers a balanced and empathetic look at an individual or families. Class Matters gives the reader an honest, unflinching look at social class distinctions.
